Call to Worship (Inspired by Psalm 62, a little of 1 Cor 15:52)

Caitlin Stanford

One: I trust in God, and I pour out my whole heart before my Creator.

Many: For God alone, my soul waits...

One: As others seek riches, as others grab power, still I reach for my God.

Many: For my hope is from our God.

One: When I am troubled and worry my whole heart might break....

Many: I remember to put my trust in God, and send that breaking heart in Their direction.

One: Maybe I can be changed, in the twinkling of an eye,

Many: To hope with God's whole hope,

One: To trust with God's whole trust,

Many: To love with all of God's love.

One: For God alone, my soul waits...

Many: May the Lord our God find us here.

One: Come, O friends, and let us worship the God who holds our whole hearts.

These stanzas are selected from a 20th-century English poetic version of an Irish monastic prayer dating to the 10th century or before. They are set to an Irish folk melody that has proved popular and easily sung despite its lack of repetition and its wide range.
